MEET THE JUDGE

I am a maker based in St. Louis, Missouri. My path has been layered and nonlinear, beginning with a BS in Actuarial Science and a career in the corporate world, followed by years focused on raising children, volunteering in the community, and supporting our small business. I eventually returned to college to earn a BFA and build a creative practice centered on material, process, and expression. My work explores perception, emotion, and the shared stories that shape how we move through the world. I use gesture, texture, and surface variation to invite presence, reflection, and connection. Alongside my studio practice, I remain engaged in the arts and education communities through volunteer leadership, jurying, and consulting.
